Why do reception or administrative staff open letters addressed to doctors?

Our doctors receive a large volume of correspondence each day. To help ensure information is processed safely and efficiently, incoming mail is opened by trained reception and administrative staff on behalf of the clinical team.

This allows important documents to be:

- directed to the correct clinician
- scanned onto the medical record where appropriate
- and dealt with promptly.

All members of the practice team, including administrative staff, are bound by strict confidentiality rules and data protection requirements.

If you wish to discuss something privately with a doctor, the most appropriate way to do this is usually by booking an appointment rather than sending a letter marked "Private and Confidential".

If you are unable to attend your appointment, please let us know as soon as possible so we may use the appointment for another patient.

Thank you!
